

Facilitation

Co-creating and curating connection

Humans are uniquely curious beings. We're designed to live with complexity and make sense of things – and to make decisions – together.

Engage Change connects people with impact through successful partnerships across business, government and community organisations and networks.

This work is informed by decades of experience in engaging and empowering people to make a difference for communities, causes and customers.

Our thoughtful, fun and flexible design and delivery of facilitated sessions, days or programs helps anyone explore, experiment and, vitally, co-create.

We all need connection, so when it comes to working through the challenges and opportunities of the world, it's vital to ensure everyone feels welcome, energised and ready to bring their best to the experience (in person or online).

We are familiar with – and often blend – techniques across the fields of strategy, leadership development, stakeholder engagement, co-design, storytelling and behaviour change.

Small to medium groups

Masterclasses in 'Storytelling for Impact' and 'Leading with Change'

- + Strategic planning sessions
- + Leadership days and retreats
- + Citizen juries and other deliberative decision-making forums
- + Co-design workshops
- + Design thinking and futures thinking sessions
- + Theory of Change workshops
- + Nature and cultural immersion (with First Nations leaders)
- + Lego, play-dough and other play-based workshops.

Larger gatherings

- + Stakeholder and community consultations
- + Leadership summits (curation, design, emceeing and panel hosting)
- + Professional conferences
- + Pitch fests and innovation events
- + Thought leadership forums and talks (TEDx-style and similar formats)
- + Unconferences including open space, World Cafe and other interactive co-creation models
- + Design charettes and other large-scale design collaborations.

Engage Change's facilitated work is led by Matthew Wright-Simon and delivered in partnership with clients and collaborators.

Here is what people say about working with us.

Matthew is incredibly knowledgeable; an excellent communicator; a humble professional; a powerful leader; and has a unique ability to bring a sense of calm to whatever situation he is in.

I've seen this with a small group in a workshop setting or meeting, through to an audience of hundreds of people.

Jason Tyndall, CEO, Nature Play SA

We recently contracted Matthew from Engage Change to facilitate a series of research days involving deliberative methodologies.

Matthew is a powerhouse of creativity and enthusiasm. He was not only fun to work with, but his unique approach kept participants engaged and energised over long sessions filled with insightful exchanges and discussions.

Rachel Ambagtsheer, Associate Professor, Torrens University

Engage Change

A collaborative consultancy connecting people with impact.

In addition to facilitation, services include: strategy + leadership + mentoring + emceeing + storytelling + activation

www.engagechange.au

Kaurna yarta, Adelaide
Australia

